Lewis J Goetz, FAIA FIIDA
President, CEO - Group Goetz Architects PC

Group Goetz Architects, PC, based in Washington, DC, is an internationally recognized award winning design firm specializing in architecture, interiors, building renovation and adaptive reuse. Lewis Goetz has significantly impacted the architectural design profession through his innovative and forward thinking designs for the modern workplace, interior spaces, and his focused practice of architecture.

His work has won numerous local and national awards including two National AIA Honor Awards for Interiors in 2000 and 2001. Mr. Goetz is known for his strategic thinking on architecture and workplace design and has spoken publicly in a number of forums, including IFMA World Workplace, IIDA, NEOCON and the AIA regarding organizational, technical and aesthetic issues affecting interior architecture and the design of the workplace. Mr. Goetz was a contributor and consultant to the GSA's "The Integrated Workplace: A Comprehensive Approach to Developing Workspace."

In his over thirty years of professional practice, Mr. Goetz has designed architectural spaces for some of America's most prestigious companies and institutions, including ExxonMobil, NASA, World Bank, The Smithsonian Institute, the Kennedy Center, and Department of Commerce.

Mr. Goetz is a Fellow in both the American Institute of Architects (AIA) and International Interior Design Association (IIDA). He served as President of IIDA International (2003-2004), Chairman of the IIDA Foundation (2004-2005), and is currently serving as Chairman of the IIDA College of Fellows 2007-2009.
